Kamehameha the Great, landing at Waikiki in his war-canoe, accompanied by a fleet of canoes filled with warriors, may be a feature of the coming Mardi Gras, depending largely on where the carnival is held. If it is held at the Beach the landing of Kamehameha may be carried out. This idea, suggested by Mr. Harry Macfarlane and transferred to the Kiloana Art League by Mr. Graham, and endorsed by Mrs. Graham, general chairman of the Mardi Gras committees, is regarded as an excellent one, and might be to Honolulu what the entrance of the Veiled Prophet is to St. Louis and that of similar dignitaries to New Orleans and Denver.

The idea is to have canoes lashed together to form something of the design of the craft used by Kamehameha the Great. There are Hawaiian dramatic societies here which have much of the regalia necessary to clothe so august a personage as the Conqueror, including imitation feather helmets and cloaks, together with spears and war drums and other accoutrements. Some of the tableaux given by these societies on the stage recently could be very well repeated beneath the trees at Waikiki after the landing of Kamehameha. Ancient Hawaii could well be shown in such a feature, which would be given before the Mardi Gras ball begins. A moonlight night is suggested for the spectacle.

It is suggested that if the affair be undertaken that the date of the Mardi Gras be postponed until the special party from Los Angeles arrives here, which will be about February 28. The Mardi Gras is taking shape rapidly under the generalship of Mrs. W. M. Graham. The chairmen of the various working committees, who are called to meet tomorrow evening at the Art League rooms, Young building, are as follows:

Building, Mrs. Helen Noonan; Decorations, Miss Rika Nolte; Refreshments, Mrs. Harry Lewis; Costumes, Mrs. Arthur Wilder; Publicity, Mrs. Douglas; Finance, C. H. Cooke; Ushers, R. W. Dodge; Law and Order, Col. C. P. Lauke; Music, Mrs. C. B. Cooper; Posters, D. Howard Hitchcock; General Chairman, Mrs. W. M. Graham.

The list of patronesses is yet to be selected.

With every dollar of debt paid, the Kailani Home for Girls opened its doors yesterday for an invitational reception to those interested. The premises and handsome new building cost $31,000 and not a cent remains unpaid, due to the generous donations of philanthropic people both of the Hawaiian Islands and the mainland. The Home is built on the old Cooke premises on King street, opposite the Castle Kindergarten, and is an attractive-looking building surrounded by beautiful lawns and shrubbery. The spacious interior, cut into large rooms for parlors, diningroom and sittingroom, with goodly halls, is finished in natural wood. It is simply furnished, but pleasantly so, and throughout it is home-like, and with Mrs. S. D. Heapy in charge it is like a happy home governed by a much-loved mother. Mrs. Heapy was the prime mover in getting such an institution established, and it is largely due to her that the donations were so freely given. She is assisted in the management by her daughter, Mrs. Stafford Heapy.

At the reception Mrs. Heapy was assisted by Mrs. George H. Carter, Mrs. Fred Macfarlane, Mrs. W. F. Frear and Mrs. Du Rol and Miss Pope. The young ladies of the Home were dressed in white and also wore rosettes of yellow and white, the Home colors. The visitors were conducted through the Home and grounds and afterwards had some dainty refreshments. Governor Carter, who was there, expressed himself as more than pleased with the splendid equipment.

The building is almost square, and two stories in height, with several entrances. Downstairs there is an office, a large reception hall and a very large drawingroom. Opposite is a big dining hall and commodious quarters for the kitchen and pantry and storeroom. There is also a general sittingroom, where a piano and sewing machines invite pleasure and industry.

A broad staircase leads to the second story, where the rooms of the young ladies are located. There are accommodations for 46 persons, generally with two to a room. Each room is provided with two beds, two bureaus and several chairs, and clothes closet. Electric lights are numerous throughout the house. There is also a hospital, comprising a room with three cots, a bathroom and a medicine room.

The grounds comprise 1-8 acres and are beautifully laid out. There is an out-of-doors swimming tank.

The Kailani Home for Girls was started to afford a home to assist young working girls and girls attending schools, at a reasonable price, the average rate being $12 per month. This gives a girl a room and her board. The institution is now self-supporting.

The building was designed by Merithew and is a fine example of his work.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Waldron have taken a residence at Waikiki.

Mr. Eugene C. Horton gave a most entertaining talk on Walt Whitman before the Kiloana Art League yesterday afternoon, with a reading from the author's works. The reading was impressive and the little talk refreshing. The afternoon was given under the auspices of the Literary Circle of the League. Mrs. W. F. Frear received the guests and Miss Nita Hardaway presided at the tea-table, assisted by Mrs. Graham. A number of people were present. The Kiloana Art League meetings and social and literary sessions are becoming more and more popular as the winter season advances. Mr. Dodge announced that the rooms would be open daily from 3:30 to 5 p. m.
